Firefighter dies in blaze

John Cammack of Nara Visa fell from an engine during grass fire.

STAFF REPORT

A Nara Visa volunteer firefighter died on Thursday after suffering burns trying to extinguish a fire that was more than seven miles long and three miles wide.

John Cammack, 74, of Nara Visa, was severely burned after falling from a fire engine during a "burn over" Wednesday night, said Nara Visa Fire Chief Gary Girard.

Girard said a second firefighter, Kyle Perez, was also injured during the incident.

He said the firefighters were attempting to refill a fire engine with a water tanker when the winds shifted abruptly. "We were no longer fighting the fire; we were running from the fire," Girard said.

Girard said the flames were as high as the fire engine as they fled the area. He said Cammack was transported to Lubbock for treatment and Perez was Governor orders flags at half-staff on Tuesday.

Flags across the state and in Emmitsburgh, Maryland, were at half-staff as a family and community laid one of their own to rest Tuesday in Nara Visa.

John Cammack, 74, of Nara Visa died on June 22, from burns he sustained fighting the Griffith fire the previous day. The fire was seven miles long and three miles wide.

On Monday, Gov. Susana Martinez issued an executive order declaring all flags in the state be brought to half-staff on Tuesday from sunrise to sunset.

Martinez issued the order to honor the more than 30-year volunteer firefighter whose neighbors and friends said volunteering was just part of Cammack's nature. A few people

Teen rides for charity

South Carolinian bikes across country to aid Water Mission.

By Steve Hansen
QCS CORRESPONDENT

Scotty Parker, 13, stopped in Tucumcari Thursday on his way across the country to raise money for a cause he has been helping with since he was 7 years old.

Scotty pedaled into town aboard a lightweight road bicycle, accompanied by bike-riding family, friends and local cyclists, and escorted by Tucumcari police and Quay County sheriff's deputies.

He started June 8 on the Santa Monica Pier in Santa Monica, California, on his route to North Charleston, South Carolina, on a journey called "Scotty's Ride for Water."

Scotty hopes in eight weeks to pedal the whole 3,270 miles to raise $500,000 for the Water Mission, an international Christian charity that brings clean water to impoverished communities worldwide.

The water mission operates in 53 countries in South and Central America, Southeast Asia and Africa to bring clean water to often remote communities that have suffered the effects of consuming and using unclean water. The charity has also helped find and distribute clean water in the U.S. after natural disasters, including recent hurricanes in Florida and 2005's Hurricane Katrina that devastated New Orleans.

Scotty, who is from Charleston, South Carolina, is getting help from his dad, Steve, mom, Pam, and sisters, Lily, 9, and Emmylou, 5, as well as other supporters, including a rep-representative of water mission.

Even Lily said she is enjoying the traveling and watching Scotty's progress.

"We're very proud of him," she said.

As he sat in an aluminum lawn chair at Tucumcari's Blue Swallow Motel Thursday, Scotty talked about seeing scenes of children drinking muddy water in Uganda when he was 7 years old.

"It hurt my heart," he said. "They didn't have clean water like me."

Every 21 seconds, he said, someone dies from a water-borne illness.

So he vowed to do something about it.

For his eighth birthday, he asked for donations to the Water Mission for his birthday and raised $600, according to his dad, Steve.

Two years ago, Scotty cycled 220 miles across South Carolina with his dad and pulled down $70,000 in donations to help the mission.

His goal of $500,000 with his cross-country ride is far from a pipe dream. Two anonymous donors are matching donations up to $100,000 each, according to the scottysride website.

When donations and matches are totaled up, Steve Parker said, "we're going to reach that goal easily."

Since the family is covering expenses for the ride, Steve said, all of the donated funds will go to the Water Mission.

Scotty trained for this cross-country trek by clocking 7,000 miles, taking long rides and climbing many hills to build strength, Steve said.

Along the way, Scotty participated in last year's Hincapie Gran Fondo, an 80-mile ride through the moun-

USDA faces budget cuts

Farmer: It seems that ag is targeted, but not welfare.

By Thomas Garcia
and Eamon Scarbro
STAFF WRITERS

The looming possibility of cuts to the U.S. Department of Agriculture isn't what farmers in Eastern New Mexico want to see, but if spending on welfare and food assistance programs share the cuts, they say they are willing to face them.

The proposed USDA 2018 budget, unveiled in May, shows plans to cut $4.8 billion from the agency, a 21 percent cut.

The USDA funds a wide range of programs from the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program to subsidies for crop insurance.

New restrictions on the subsidies will limit insurance premium subsidies to $40,000 for individuals, projected to "save taxpayers about $28.8 billion over 10 years," according to the budget.

It does not seem fair that the proposed cuts seem to target the agricultural side of the USDA, while the welfare program goes without any cuts, said Herman Lopez, Quay County Farmer.

Herman said cuts to crop insurance would have a huge impact on himself, the region and the entire country. He said cuts to the subsidies from those programs will make it difficult for farmers to operate in the event of loss from a disaster.

If you don't have crop insurance and you have a failure, it will put you out of business, said Donnie Bidegain.

Bidegain said when a USDA subsidy was cut in the past, it was in part a way to eliminate a system that was in disarray and push farmers to the crop insurance system. He said in the past, the subsidies paid farmers whether they grew a crop or not, but by using the crop insurance system, farmers actually had to prove they attempted to grow a crop.

Bidegain said if this latest round of cuts eliminates the crop insurance, then that leaves farmers in the area and across the country without a safety net.

The federal subsidies from crop insurance is the only thing that has kept farmers in the eastern New Mexico region going through the drought, said Robert Lopez, a Tucumcari farmer.

Lopez said in the Arch Hurley Conservancy District, there would have been no way that farmers could have continued without the insurance because of

Tucumcari MainStreet gets special designation

STAFF REPORT

Tucumcari MainStreet has been designated as an accredited Main Street America program for meeting "rigorous performance standards" set by the National Main Street Center, according to a news release from the center.

Each year, the National Main Street Center and its coordinating program partners announce accredited Main Street America programs in recognition of their exemplary commitment to economic development and community revitalization based on preserving valuable assets already in the community, the news release said. Performance standards an organization must meet include fostering strong public/private partnerships, securing an operating budget, tracking progress of programs and actively preserving historic buildings.

In the past year, Tucumcari MainStreet adopted the Metropolitan Redevelopment Plan for the downtown district, was selected for a Great Blocks on Main Street grant and supported a Historic Theaters Local Economic Development Act grant for the Odeon Theater's emergency roof repairs, according to the release.

Spay, neuter clinic sees over 100

By Thomas Garcia
 QCS SENIOR WRITER
 tgarcia@qcsunonline.com

An Arizona-based mobile spay and neuter clinic provided services to more than 100 area residents last week with the goal of reducing uncontrolled pet population.

The purpose of this service is to help the community overall, said Peter Estrada, AGAVE Charities volunteer.

Estrada was one of the volunteers, veterinarian technicians and veterinarians who staffed the mobile spay and neuter vehicle out of Tucson, Arizona.

Estrada said the services provided by the mobile clinic is at a reduced cost, helping those unable to afford the normal cost of the procedures.

The cost of the services is $50, the resident only pays $20, said Kathi McClelland, director of Paws and Claws Animal Rescue of Quay County, Inc.

McClelland said the remaining $30 has been paid by donations raised by Paws and Claws and funding from the city of Tucumcari. She said without the support of the city, community services like this could not be provided.

Quay County resident Corlie Leonard said there is a local veterinarian clinic, but she could not wait the two to three months it takes for an appointment.

Leonard said she took advantage of the mobile clinic, bringing her two dogs into be spayed and neutered. She said this was the first time Spud and Foxy had been off the ranch.

The community needs to support services like this mobile clinic as much as possible, said Sherri Muncy, Logan resident.

Muncy said the mobile clinic is helpful for those living in a rural area or on a fixed income.

This was the first time this mobile clinic had been used by Paw and Claws, but in two days, they had serviced three times as many animals as the mobile clinics in the past, said Tamy Willard, Paws and Claws board member.

Willard said the reduced cost of mobile clinics allows low income families from the area to get their animal serviced. She said many times the families have to choose between paying a utility bill or having their animal spayed or neutered.

admitted to a hospital in Amarillo.

Perez' condition was not released, but a family member posted on social media that he'd been released from the hospital.

Girard said Nara Visa, Rosebud and Logan fire departments were fighting five fires fueled by dry grass and spread quickly with wind gusts of 40 mph.

The fires were west of Nara Visa, about 50 miles northeast of Tucumcari in Quay County.

Girard said at one point, three of the fires combined into one large fire. He said one unit reported the fire spread across the Texas border.

Girard said the amount of acreage burned in the fire is not known, but it took the three departments more than 10 hours to contain and extinguish.

The largest fire reported was near the Caprock south of Tucumcari off of New Mexico 209. Firefighters from Quay Rural 1 and Rural 2 fought the fire from 1:03 p.m. Wednesday to 1:07 a.m. Thursday.

The fire burned more than 350 acres said John Hinze, Rural 1 fire chief.

shared insight about the fallen firefighter.

John Cammack was a hard working honest man; he would help every neighbor if he could, said Gary Girard, Nara Visa fire chief.

Girard said Cammack was the first one to help out anyone who needed, whether an animal problem or repairing a fence. He said Cammack had worked as a certified veterinarian in Colorado before returning to the family farm following his fathers death.

Girard said from the time John moved back, he has been an active member of the community, not just in his farm work; he joined the volunteer fire department in 1988.

Martinez issuing the executive order to honor Cammack is a wonderful thing, said Girard. He said Cammack lived 20 miles from the station, but you could count on him to come in and help however he could. If there was a fire towards his homestead, he would wait for the fire engines and join them.

Girard said John was also honored on Tuesday in Emmitsburg, Maryland, where the flag was flown at half mast and his name and story were added to the National Fallen Firefighters Memorial. He said if John were here, he would have said "no, don't add my name to the memorial; I was only doing my duty."

Girard said he has spoken to several news outlets in the past few days, and each time he finds more to say about his friend.

"I have been thinking about what I am going to say," said Chester Kimber on Monday. Kimber, a neighbor and friend, spoke Tuesday at Cammack's memorial services.

Kimber said Cammack was a special person in the way he put others before himself. He said Cammack used to buy little bales of alfalfa from him; he would pay before he left, always be on time and even help load the trailer.

"However, John would never let me help him unload the trailer," he said.

Kimber said at events, dinners and memorial meals, Cammack was the last to get into line for food. He would wait until everyone else had been served and then get in line. He would also bring food to every community meal.

Kimber said Cammack would also take his 90-year-old neighbor, Howard Robertson, to all of the events he attended. Kimber said on of the last conversations he had with John, he told him how much he appreciated him taking Howard to events.

"I will never forget John's response," Kimber said. "It's my honor to take Howard to events. Howard and Pauline, (Howard's late wife) have always treated me wonderful."

Kimber said Cammack was the most humble man he ever knew — he was a bragger but never on himself.

"There are not enough words to describe who 'Johnny' was to my family," said Liz Burns, a neighbor and friend of more than 30 years.

Burns said Johnny was kind, caring, thoughtful, respectful and always willing to help anyone he could and never expected it in return.

Burns said Johnny took the job of vice president of the cemetery board with great pride. He kept records on the burials and the plots.

"I don't know who will take his place, if anyone could or what we will do now that he is gone," Burns said. "Johnny gave us all advise, did everything he could even though he was 74. He will be greatly missed," Burns said.

Festivities set for Fourth

By Thomas Garcia
QCS SENIOR WRITER
tgarcia@qcsunonline.com

Area celebrations for the Fourth of July will kick off this weekend in Logan with a street dance, parade, free barbecue and fireworks display.

The Logan/Ute Lake Chamber of Commerce's 45th annual Fourth of July festivities will begin on Friday.

The events will include the Friday night street dance featuring Will Banister and the Modern Day Ramblers, said Bucky Stone, chamber vice president.

Stone said the recent rains will aid in making this year's event more enjoyable for the residents and visitors. He said this year's raffle features several prizes including $10,000 cash, an $11,000 remodeling package and a vacation package worth up to $11,000. Tickets cost $25 and are available at several area retailers.

Stone said on Saturday, there will be a parade at 10 a.m., people interested in entering a float can call Bobby or Judy Casados at 575-403-8623. He said for those with a competitive nature, a horseshoe pitching contest will be held at the Ute Lake State Park entrance. For more information about the horseshoe contest, contact Charles Knotts at 575-403-7668.

Stone said one of the main draws to the event is the free barbecue and bean feed in which residents and visitors are treated to a free barbecue meal served by the chamber members and staff.

Stone said the celebration wraps up with the free fireworks display at Windy Point at Ute Lake State Park.

Tucumcari's Fourth of July celebration will be held on Tuesday with the free fireworks display at the Elk's Lodge.

The city of Tucumcari and the Elk's Lodge have split the cost of the fireworks display for the enjoyment of the residents, said Jared Langenegger, city manager.

For residents looking to purchase and shoot off fireworks of their own, there are currently no fireworks restrictions in place for Quay County, Logan, Tucumcari or San Jon.

Moisture over the past several weeks has helped to keep the area grasslands green, but people need to exercise caution when using fireworks, said Donald Adams, Quay County fire marshal.

It is very important to be safe with fireworks; it needs to start with the children, said Mark Martinez, interim fire chief.

Martinez said parents and guardians need to stress to their children that an adult needs to be present when setting off fireworks. There needs to be someone who is at least 16 years old when using fireworks.

Martinez said when setting off fireworks, people need to use a flat area away from buildings, grassy areas and any structures that may catch fire. He said be courteous and dispose of the the water situation. He said insurance is the only thing that farmers have as a back up in the event of a disaster.

Lopez said the crop insurance is the best as there is no way to cheat the program. He said each individual farm claim is based on past crop yields. The system also benefits the farmer as it pays on the current year market prices if you have a claim.

Other USDA items on the chopping block include market access programs and foreign market development, according to New Mexico Agriculture Secretary Jeff Witte.

"Those kinds of cuts really put the United States at a disadvantage when it comes to accessing developing nations. New Mexico's been successful when it comes to introducing our pecans into the Asian markets. It's using those kinds of programs that's helped us get that access," said Witte.

He added that cuts to the USDA threaten the continued distribution of New Mexico products to 47 countries.

"We have our products around the world, and it takes a lot of work to make sure they stay there, so it'll be tough," he said. "It'll be a challenge for the state, but our farmers are resilient. We'll figure it out, but it'll just be one of those things."

State tax rates 'absolutely matter' to biz interests

It would be easy to take the simplistic view that lowering New Mexico's top corporate income rate from 7.6 percent to 5.9 percent over a five-year period as part of a 2013 business tax overhaul is costing New Mexico a lot of money.

It would also be wrong. Corporate tax collections have dipped from $281 million in fiscal 2012 to a projected $118 million in fiscal 2017. Critics of the overhaul, which also included getting rid of the so-called single sales factor, point to the numbers and say if the goal was to encourage job growth, it has been a failure.

Indeed, New Mexico State University economist Jim Peach says there "is very little evidence that lowering tax rates promotes economic growth. You're seeing that here." Peach argues that a well-trained work force is more important.

State officials counter that the overhaul put New Mexico in a more competitive position and cite the economic devastation wrought by the plunge in oil and gas prices. Clinton Turner, chief economist for the Department of Finance and Administration, points out that job growth in private business is up 9,000 jobs over last year.

Moving outside academia for a moment, it's worth noting that New Mexico's old corporate rate would have us higher than Arizona, 4.9; Utah, 5; Colorado, 4.63; and even New York at 6.5. Texas and several other states have no corporate income tax.

Meanwhile, states like New York are aggressively pushing other tax breaks. New York offers companies that agree to start or relocate certain kinds of businesses on or near eligible university or college campuses "the opportunity to operate tax-free for 10 years." The state has 10 regions offering tax-free zones.

Perhaps New York hasn't gotten the message that tax rates don't promote economic growth.

Gary Tonjes, chief executive of Albuquerque Economic Development, deals with companies looking to expand or relocate.

He says that prior to the 2013 changes, New Mexico's policy toward expanding employers was "atrocious" and New Mexico was eliminated from consideration for many projects because of its tax structure. A study by Ernst and Young rated our attractiveness to manufacturers as worst in the nation.

Peach is correct that companies consider many factors, including work force. They also look at public schools, crime, transportation infrastructure, etc.

Tonjes says that for most companies, deciding on a new location is not a process of selection — rather it is one of elimination.

And taxes, he says, "absolutely matter." Lawmakers should keep that in mind when they revisit this issue.

Look forward to make U.S. better

It will never be 1962 again, but there are some highly placed people who want it to return or have never left that year.

Our current president, Donald Trump, wants to return manufacturing jobs to the U.S., return Cuba to its Communist enemy status and rebuild the military to Cold War levels.

Just like things were in 1962.

Even the president cannot reverse globalization and automation, the two forces that have had the worst effects on U.S. manufacturing jobs, which made the U.S. a great place to live in 1962.

We should keep looking for ways to restore wealth to our working population, but attempting to turn back the clock, even to a year as great as 1962, won't do it.

In the 55 years since then, Cuba has excelled at nothing better than illustrating communism's utter failure. Cuba and communism are no longer the threats they used to be.

President Barack Obama's easing of relations with Cuba as its only dictator Fidel Castro stepped down was designed to open the door to change, but Trump won't have it. That wasn't the way it was in 1962.

That brings us Vladimir Putin, the leader of communist Cuba's sponsor, Russia. Putin has done more to steer Russia back to Soviet times than any leader since Nikita Khrushchev, who dominated the Soviet Union in 1962.

Putin, however, is not obligated to hide dictatorial instincts and corruption behind phony communism, as his predecessors were. He leads a corrupt dictatorship because he can, but it works to his advantage to dredge up Soviet-era scare stories to control his people.

The arms race of 1962 with the Soviets is also over. Only Putin's rhetoric has kept up.

We can continue to ease up on the grossly bloated cost of maintaining a Cold War military.

To Kim Jong-Un, the dangerously adolescent leader of communist North Korea, it has never stopped being 1962. He stages the same huge military parades that his father and grandfather produced.

The missiles, probably his father's and grandfather's, glide by in all their showprow glory and the soldiers, wearing uniforms that were outdated in 1962, still goose-step like it's 1939.

Meanwhile, his country stays mired timelessly in abject poverty.

The final throwback I'll mention is Attorney General Jeff Sessions.

In 1962, marijuana was a narcotic on a par with heroin in the popular mind.

To Jeff Sessions, it still is, despite marijuana's legalization in some form in 26 states.

And what do you do with those who consume marijuana? Sessions' solution is to toss 'em in the slammer and throw away the key.

That approach will succeed, as it always has, only in packing more minor offenders into sardine-can prisons, where they will learn, more than anything, how to get better at crime.

As great as 1962 was, it will never come back, but in our country we should still work to make 2022, five years from now and 70 years after 1962, even better.

To do that, however, we have to look forward, not back.

Clinton only one with useful secrets

When Sally Yates testified before a Senate judiciary subcommittee, her bombshell was not that National Security Advisor Michael Flynn had lied to his bosses about speaking to Russian officials.

Her big news was that the Russians could use this information to blackmail Flynn.

Yates' testimony was backed up by the former director of national intelligence, James Clapper, who told the subcommittee that Moscow could use this type of information as leverage against Flynn and that, "This is a classic technique they would use going back to the Soviet era."

As a side note, Yates failed to mention to the committee who authorized the "unmasking" of Flynn.

Both Yates and Clapper seem to have forgotten that blackmail only works if the information you use to threaten someone with remains secret. Once the information is made public, any leverage you may have gained becomes unusable.

For instance the Russians had no leverage on President Obama when he told Russian President Dmitri Medvedev he would have more flexibility to negotiate on issues like missile defense after the election. Obama said it into an open microphone.

When Jeh Johnson, former secretary of Homeland Security appeared before the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence he confirmed that the Obama administration knew about the Russians meddling in our election process, but feared that going public with this information would reveal U.S. intelligence gathering methods.

In point of fact, the Obama administration showed no concern about the Russian meddling because they, along with everyone else, assumed Hillary Clinton would win the election.

Former FBI Director James Comey has stated publicly that the FBI believes foreign intelligence services to include Russia, China and Israel have the complete content of the Clinton bathroom server used by Hillary during her tenure as secretary of state. They believe this because Clinton routinely used an unsecure Blackberry device during her trips abroad, including to countries not friendly to the United States.

If the Russians wanted

Trump to win the presidential election, why didn't they make the data from Clinton's server public? The Russians didn't release Clinton's data because they knew that Trump didn't stand a chance of winning. The information would become much more valuable when Hillary Clinton was in the Whitehouse.

It appears to me that the only candidate with secret data susceptible to blackmail in this whole sordid affair is Hillary Clinton. That's something to ask Sally Yates and James Clapper.

To understand what is happening in Washington today, start with the premise that Hillary was supposed to win the election. When Trump won, it destroyed the narrative.

Fired deputy faces drug charges

□ The incident stems from March traffic stop.

By David Grieder
STAFF WRITER
dgrieder@thenews.email

CLOVIS — A former deputy with the Curry County Sheriff's Office was arrested Wednesday, accused of misappropriating drugs taken during a traffic stop and lying about it on sworn court documents.

Brandon Nolen, 31, of Tucumcari, is charged with perjury, tampering with public records and possession of a controlled substance, according to documents filed Wednesday in magistrate court.

Clovis Fire Chief Mike Nolen said Wednesday was the first he learned of the investigation related to his eldest son, and that he was "devastated." He said he is hopeful for his son's innocence but respects whatever determination the court will ultimately make.

"I have full faith and confidence in our local law enforcement and our court systems that justice will prevail in the situation with my son," he said.

The investigation stems from a March 20 traffic stop Brandon Nolen made in Clovis while still employed as a deputy. Court records show he searched a vehicle and seized "approximately four grams of suspected methamphetamine along with a handgun and items of drug paraphernalia."

Two days later, Nolen tested positive for amphetamines on a urinalysis, part of a regular screening required by "a voluntary substance abuse program for possible alcohol abuse" he had previously joined, records show. A second testing of that same sample on March 28 "confirmed the presence of amphetamines which could be construed to be an ingestible amount."

Curry County Sheriff Wesley Waller said Nolen's employment was terminated by Curry County on April 4.

An inventory of Nolen's cases and evidence locker conducted after his termination determined the methamphetamine seized March 20 to be missing, but "all other evidence seized during this traffic stop was present," court records show.

"I requested the New Mexico State Police conduct a criminal investigation into the matter to address the possibility of unlawful misconduct," Waller said Wednesday.

The NMSP officer who wrote the arrest affidavit and criminal complaint for the investigation said he "(believes) Mr. Nolen did take possession of the methamphetamine for his own use" and that he then perjured himself by claiming in a sworn criminal complaint filed with magistrate court that he had placed those methamphetamines in a temporary evidence locker.

Nolen's father said his son is still in the process of securing defense counsel. He said there is no connection between his son's investigation and a pending investigation concerning possible tampering with narcotic drugs used by Clovis Emergency Medical Services.

Brandon Nolen was arrested Wednesday evening and booked into Quay County Detention Center on a $5,000 cash or surety bond. He remained in the Tucumcari jail on Thursday evening.

After an early rally to tie the game, the Quay County Minor League All-Stars fell 14-8 Monday to the Roosevelt County All-Stars at Tucumcari.

The game was a lot closer than the score showed, said Cole Wallin, Quay County head coach.

The Quay All-Stars were down 4-0 in the bottom of the second with two outs when Joshua Griego connected with a fastball and got on base.

"I just watched the ball and knew I had to get a hit," Griego said.

Griego stole second base and advance to third base on a wild pitch.

Quay All-Star Mason Wallin hit a line drive on a 1-2 count and as he ran to first, Griego beat the throw to home to earn the team their first score.

"I kept thinking, I had to beat the throw," Griego said.

Wallin said he focused on making it to first base.

"I didn't have time to worry about the throw; I just ran," Wallin said.

The Quay All-Stars will play again today in Tucumcari at a time to be determined.

Rattlers 2A track comes out on top

□ Championship rings were given to team members for their state win.

By Thomas Garcia
QCS SENIOR WRITER

A way to go out on top and a push to improve and set new records were what a few of the 2A track and field state champion Tucumcari Rattlers said Monday of receiving their state championship rings.

It was the best possible outcome, considering we thought we had tied for third, said Billy Sandoval, a 2017 graduate.

Sandoval said winning a state championship his senior year is exactly how he wanted to go out, "on a high note."

For sophomores, Xavier Garcia and Seth Martinez said, a state championship feels amazing but each has new goals to aim for next year.

"I want to set the state record in the 110 and 300 meter hurdles," Martinez said.

Martinez, who won gold in both the 110 and 300 meter hurdles, said his drive is to repeat the wins but set a new record.

Garcia said his goal of setting the state record in the javelin fell short.

"I threw for the record during my practice throw," Garcia said.

Garcia, who placed first in javelin, said the state record is in his sight, and he is determined to break it next season.

"I owe everything to my family and coaches who pushed me to do my best," Garcia said.

"These boys did an amazing job," said Eddie Encinias, assistant track coach.

Encinias said while it is a day to celebrate the students' achievements, the team and coaches also owe thanks to CJ Wiegel and Jeff Nunn for all of their support throughout the season.

Body of drowned teen recovered

By David Grieder

FORT SUMNER — The body of a teenage drowning victim was recovered about 8 a.m. Sunday in the Pecos River near Fort Sumner.

New Mexico State Police in a news release said the body of Tularosa's Colton Alexander Sawyer, 19, was recovered about a mile from where he was last seen with friends on Friday night.

"Mr. Sawyer and two other friends were jumping into the river near a diversion dam north of US Highway 60 near milepost 325 (west of Fort Sumner) and Mr. Sawyer never resurfaced," the news release read.

The sheriff's office was notified around 7:30 p.m. Friday, De Baca County Deputy Medical Investigator Juan Chavez said, and state police were called in to assist around 9 p.m.

NMSP's Search and Recovery Dive Team searched the area Saturday morning, along with others, along the river south of the dam.

Chavez said the search Saturday was "pretty extensive," with "ranchers on horseback, ATVs, firemen and people on boats" out looking for any sign of the teen.

The teen's body has been sent to the Office of the Medical Investigator for autopsy, the news release said.

Water authority allocated $5 million

By Alisa Boswell

aboswell@thenews.email

CLOVIS — Eastern New Mexico Water Utility Authority officials announced Friday they have been allocated $5 million from the Bureau of Reclamation.

Gayla Brumfield, who recently stepped down as the chair of the water authority board, said the allocation is the largest the project has ever received bringing the amount of funding to $15.1 million.

But there is still "a lot of work to go," Brumfield said of the $500 million project.

"This is really an exciting time," she told those gathered at a press conference Friday morning at the Clovis library. "It has been a project of diligence and challenges as we all know, but when you know it's something that's best for our community, then you have to press forward."

Brumfield said the additional funding was due to money left over from other projects. The Ute pipeline project has never seen more than $1 or $2 million allocations before now, she said.

"We really wouldn't be anywhere without our representatives and our delegation," Brumfield said, adding that local and state legislatures, such as Sens. Martin Heinrich and Tom Udall, always "went to bat" for the project and helped to get funding.

Ben Salazar of Udall's office, Diane Ventura of Heinrich's office and Ron Wimot of Ben Ray Lujan's office, all said during the press conference that the New Mexico delegation strongly supports the pipeline project.

"Over the years, water levels below Clovis, Portales and surrounding communities have declined more than 100 feet. Even with conservation and efficiency measures, existing aquifer groundwater supplies will not meet the water needs of the eastern New Mexico communities in the near future," Ventura said. "Access to clean and affordable water means that cities in eastern New Mexico can grow, our farmers and ranchers can produce local food, and Cannon Air Force Base can continue to play a vital role in protecting our national security."

Meetings watch

Tucumcari City Commission

Tucumcari city commissioners took the following actions Thursday at their regular meeting:

Redevelopment Area. The planning was conducted by Sites Southwest, an Albuquerque landscape architectural firm.

■ Approved a $94,000 agreement with the New Mexico Aging and Long Term Services Department for operation of the Foster Grandparent Program, in which seniors counsel children and young adults; the Senior Companion Program, in which seniors provide assistance to seniors with health and mobility limitations; and the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, which allows seniors to provide skills and expertise to community projects and organizations.

■ Approved a memorandum of understanding with Tucumcari Elementary School and the Eastern Plains Early Childhood program to allow Foster Grandparent Program volunteers to work with children.

■ Approved an allocation of $44,000 from Lodger's Tax proceeds to the Tucumcari Chamber of Commerce for the chamber's assistance with advertising and other promotional activities to encourage tourism in the city.

■ Approved a reduction in Tucumcari Convention Center fees from $900 to $600 for the New Mexico National Active and Retired Federal Employees Association (NARFE), which will hold its 2018 annual convention at the convention center. The date has not been set.

■ Approved purchase of advertising in the NARFE convention bulletin for $150.

In his report to commissioners, City Manager Jared Langenegger:

■ Recognized Assistant Police Chief Pete Rivera as the city employee of the quarter, based on his 22 years with the department and his active participation in the community.

Langenegger also cited Rivera's service as acting chief from November 2016 to February.

■ Announced that the regional economic development plan of the East Central New Mexico Stronger Economies Together region has been approved as a high-quality plan by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The region includes Quay, Guadalupe, DeBaca and Torrance counties.

■ Discussed Workforce Connection training conducted Thursday for city and county employers that introduced some new techniques in introducing new employees to a workplace.

■ Announced that a city grant application for improvements on Second Street downtown has been approved. The city was awarded $274,000, including $206,000 in grant funds matched by nearly $69,000 in city services. The city previously received $180,000 in state capital outlay funds to replace utility lines and help in installing new sidewalks.

■ Discussed the results of the city's recent recall election, in which all three commissioners whose positions had been challenged retained their commission seats.

"I believe this vote proves that the commission is listening to the citizens and the majority are happy with the way things are going," he said.

Johnny Carl Cammack

November 10, 1942 – June 22, 2017

Johnny Carl Cammack Nara Visa resident and rancher passed away on Thursday June 22, 2017, in Lubbock Texas.

Born November 10, 1942, in Tucumcari, New Mexico to Addison "BOB" and Kathy Cammack, John was raised on the family's ranch 17 miles NE of Nara Visa. He was always a very hard worker, regardless if it was building fence, branding, working cattle or studying to further himself so he could reach his dream of owning his own ranch one day. He attended school at Nara Visa, Amistad and graduated from Logan High in 1961.

He attended New Mexico State University obtaining a Bachelors Degree, enjoyed being on the rodeo team, riding bareback horse and competed in several of the RCA rodeos. Next he went to Texas A & M where he received his Masters degree and then spent the next several years as a Lab Assistant in Reproduction Physiology while earning his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine Degree in 1971. John always had a love of animals, especially horses. He chose to be working at the Golden Animal Hospital, a well known facility for treating performance type horses. Eventually moving to Arapaho Animal Clinic owned by Dr Farrow, a close friend. Eventually he was offered a position at the State of Colorado Racing Commission as a Track Vet and quickly began a program of "testing" different drugs and their effects on horse and dogs. As the project progressed as an accepted standard in the racing world, John visited a number of the surrounding states documenting his findings.

After his father passed in 1986, John made a choice to follow his dream of ranching. He bought the family ranch so he could move back to Nara Visa/Amistad/Logan areas to be near the people and land that he loved so much. For several years he also worked with his brother Jay at Camco Herefords, doing whatever was needed from fencing to helping with the Embryo Transfer Program. John was a very unassuming person who studied the Bible in detail and was a true believer. He strongly believed in self discipline, that planning plus hard work would eventually equal success, while treating everyone with honesty and respect was essential and most importantly, success is not success if you have to deceive, lie steal or cheat.

He always enjoyed seeing and visiting with his many friends from his day of "Rodeoing" and the "Race Track" Days. He seldom missed watching rodeos on TV. John was involved with many local activities such as the Nara Visa Cemetery Association, the Nara Visa Community Center (OLD SCHOOL) and the Volunteer Fire Department.

John was preceded in death by the following family members, his parents, and older brother, Jerry and niece, Beth Cammack.

Surviving relatives are as follows, younger brother, Jay (Linda) Cammack of Nara Visa; niece, Mareta (Tom) Miller Logan NM; their children, Mariah (Justin) Ward and her son Bradley of Colorado Springs; John's ranching buddy, Kohl Clemmy, Nara Visa; nephew, Jay Cammack Jr, Levelland, Texas; nephew, Brian (Dorlaska) Cammack and their son, Trentan, Edgewood NM; niece, Pam (Jim) Shepherd and their daughters, Kathryn and Emily, Lorton Virginia, nephew Newton Cammack Lovington NM, and his daughter Zoe, Lubbock Texas; niece, Gwen (Brook) Adams and their daughters, Ashlyn and Andie of Gransby, Texas.

Graveside services celebrating his life were Tuesday morning June 27, 2017, in the Nara Visa Cemetery beginning at 11:00 AM Nara Visa Time (10:00 AM Mountain Time) with Chester Kimber officiating. Pall bearers were Jimmy Valentine, Jimmy Burns, Van Robertson, Dusting Robertson, Kyle Perez, Michael Perez and Gary Girard.

To honor John Cammack, the family asks for donations to the Nara Visa Community Center in Nara Visa New Mexico 88430.

Arrangements entrusted to Dunn Funeral Home of Tucumcari NM.

Freedom in America, heaven carries responsibilities

‘My country ‘tis of thee, Sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing; Land where my fathers died, Land of the pilgrim’s pride. From every mountainside, let freedom ring.’

The year is nearly half over and Independence Day will be celebrated next week. Because it falls on Tuesday this year, many might take Monday off to make it a four-day celebration, although, I wonder how many will actually meditate on our nation’s history and the freedoms we enjoy. They might just view it as another opportunity to free themselves of the daily grind of work. America is/was called the “sweet land of liberty” because of the freedoms we’ve enjoyed; however, the song quoted above was written before slavery was abolished and the passing of most of the “equal rights” amendments. We’ve abolished publicly endorsed slavery, and civil and human rights violations continue to be addressed, but human trafficking (a nice word for slavery) still exists for many individuals. That bondage continues often because people have sold themselves as slaves to sin through drug, alcohol and sex abuse. Bondage to sin in every form transcends nationality, race, gender, economic status and any other categorization we can think of because, while we’re not born with sin, we are born with a sinful nature that expresses itself as soon as we learn about rules (Romans 7:7-8; 3:23). Sin puts us into bondage to death in addition to the daily grind of guilt, shame and fear (Genesis 2:15-17; 3:1-19; Romans 6:23; 5:12-13).

Leonard Lauriault

While we live in the greatest country on earth enjoying more freedoms than citizens of most other countries, the greatest freedom – freedom from sin – doesn’t come through our Earthly nationality. It comes to those who have citizenship in heaven, and nothing can interfere with that but us (Philippians 3:20-21).

Jesus came to release us from bondage in sin’s prison (Luke 4:14-21). He brought grace and truth by which we can be forgiven and gain freedom from that bondage (John 1:1, 14, 17; 3:16-17; 8:31-36; 14:6; Revelation 1:4-6). Jesus paid the debt

God required to bring about our forgiveness (Hebrews 9:22; 10:1-4; 2:14-15; 1 Corinthians 15:21-26). He personally told us through his inspired writers how to gain freedom through forgiveness (Mark 16:16; Acts 2:38-39; 2 Corinthians 3:17; 2 Peter 1:1-21).

Through baptism in obedience to the faith, we put off our sinful nature and unite ourselves with Jesus by participating in his death, burial and resurrection (Acts 6:7; Romans 6:3-18). This is the perfect law of liberty, and it’s not a burdensome command to obey nor does it set aside God’s grace in salvation (James 1:22-25; 1 John 5:1-3; Galatians 2:20-21; 5:24).

Our American freedoms carry the responsibilities of good citizenship and our freedom from sin and citizenship in heaven also carry responsibilities, not the least of which is attempted avoidance of future sin, as well as being good citizens of our Earthly country (Galatians 5:1, 13; 1 John 1:5-9; 1 Peter 2:13-17).

Are you enjoying all the freedom that’s available to you?
